Name of Authority	National Labour Inspectorate (Národný inšpektorát práce – NIP)
Link	http://www.nip.sk/
Short abstract	Labour inspection is regulated by Act No. 125/2006 Coll. The National Labour Inspectorate, is a state administration body with its own budget with a seat in Košice. The National Labour Inspectorate manages and controls the eight labour inspectorates in the regions and unifies and rationalises working methods of the labour inspectors, who are civil servants. A labour inspectorate is independent at the performance of labour inspection. Inspections aim at adherence to legal provisions in several fields of OSH: safety at work, safety of technical equipment, working environment agents, nuclear equipment, major industrial accidents, chemicals, and market surveillance of certain products. Recently the provision of free consultations to employers has been rising. It is the National Labour Inspectorate that issues and revokes authorisation to perform safety technical services and OSH training and education. The tasks of authorisation for verification of meeting the requirements for safety of technical equipment and certification to authorised safety technicians are also legally assigned to NIP. State defence, police and armed forces have their own labour inspection bodies. There is also a system of trade union control for the supervision of the employees' health protection, which is independent from labour inspection. This right of unions to carry out inspection is stipulated in the Labour Law. The activities of these inspectors are paid for by the state.
